Thanksgiving Message

Thursday we will celebrate Thanksgiving 1966 amid the most exciting and confusing periods of the history indeed, as Thomas Paine said, ".....These are the times that try men's souls."

One hundred forty-five years ago a group fleeing from persecution started the tradition of giving thanks for the advancement they had made. One hundred eighty-years ago another group of men considered with an despair what they had gained and what they had yet to accomplish.

History reads: 1863, 1916, 1943, 1951. Many men have throughout history to reflect on what they had accomplished and what they had yet to finish, but the message they stopped to consider.

Short years ago we had what was possibly the saddest Thanksgiving yet. Just a few days before we had lost the most to accomplish and who had accomplished much. It was a time throughout the land for meditation and reflection.

College students are not, we realize, given to reflection at this time of Thanksgiving, but let us consider what for meditation: The United States is once again in armed conflict which daily consumes many of our comrades. On our streets and highways many senselessly destroyed every day. Over all this nuclear question mark.

College students have a great deal to consider, think, because in a few infinitesimally small we shall inherit the world as it is, good or bad.

Then, is the point of considering something so apocalyptic? Man has encountered such Thanksgivings and probably shall in the future, but history is not made because of what it makes of itself, but because man makes of it. We can give up or we can try to survive. We can see that 1943 and 1963 are not just dates but representations of obstacles which man has encountered and surpassed: They represent the ability to think and act.

Thanksgiving 1966 looms in the near future. Why not make this time for thought and consideration?—The Editors

Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce agriculture committee John Schrier, right, presents a trophy to the Northwest Missouri State College livestock judging team, Barry Whitehill, F. B. Houghton, coach, Dave Mackey, and Quentin Combs, who won the college division of the NWMSC livestock judging contest.

Approximately 90 high school and college students from the surrounding area attended the 19th annual NWMSC Agriculture Club livestock judging contest held Saturday at the F. B. Houghton Sr. farm.

The purpose of the event was to provide students with a comparison between their evaluation of livestock and the judges' evaluation. Participants also gained experience in intercollegiate livestock judging.

The NWMSC winning team in the college division was composed of David Mackey, Barry Whitehill, and Quentin Combs. Mackey gained high individual scoring honors in his team's division.

Andrew County's 4-H team won scoring honors in the 4-H division. Team members were Ronald Ketchum, Terry Holt, and Gary Baumann, who was also the division's high individual scorer.

In the FFA competition, Maryville High School's team of Ronnie Stiens, James Taylor, and Robert Stiens copped first place. Taylor had the high individual score in the division.

Judges for the event from the St. Joseph Livestock Markets were Gene Francis, Jim Claycomb, Joe McKinney, and Dale Hunzinger.

Trophies, provided by the Maryville Chamber of Commerce, were presented by John Schrier, chairman of the Chamber's agriculture committee.

Style Show Guests Take 'World Tour'

Associated Women Students presented their annual Style Show Tuesday evening before a crowd of 300.

Blue Key Names Ed Byron November 'Man of Month'

Ed Byron, senior, has been named Man of the Month for November by the NWMSC Blue Key Chapter.

Ed Byron

Byron received the honor for his outstanding play during the past four grid seasons.

Head Coach Ivan Schottel described the 6-3, 230 pound senior as "our toughest defensive tackle." He also describes the Jersey City, New Jersey, product as "big, strong — at times vicious."

One of Byron's best efforts was made this season in the Kirksville game, when he seemed to become a fifth member of the Bulldog backfield. "Often overlooked by many, but never overlooked by opposing teams," could well summarize his play.

Byron has ranked third in tackles and assists for the past two seasons on the defensive unit.

Schoolmates in Philippines Reunited at Northwest State

What's it like to live on an island known for its rice terraces, one of the eight wonders of the world? This life is well known to Linda Barnett and Lea Bird, two NWMSC coeds.

Miss Barnett is from Tucson, Ariz., and Miss Bird is from Belview, Neb. Both coeds formerly lived for a while in the Philippines because their fathers were stationed at Clark Air Force Base 40 miles from Manila.

Miss Bird said she enjoyed shooting the falls in a banca (small boat) to a scenic falls. She also enjoyed the beautiful flowers which bloomed all year round.

The young women attended a military school at Clark Air Force Base. They found the teenagers in the Islands much like American youth in their dress and mannerisms. The food served at parties was quite different from what people here might imagine. Sometimes this included roast pig. Like most teenagers the natives enjoyed dancing. The music was popular, but a few years behind, Miss Barnett and Miss Bird agreed.

"Life there is so much slower," said Miss Bird. "People aren't in as much of a hurry as they are here. Also, the people are very friendly."

Spanish Students Invited To 'Monterrey' Session

Anyone interested in learning about summer school in Monterrey Tec, Mexico, is invited to attend a 4 p. m. meeting Tuesday, Nov. 29, in Room 203, Colden Hall.

'Revolution in Russia Inevitable'

only one had a slight men- tal illness. All others were there because they had ex- pressed views that differed from those of the commu- nist outlook.

Mr. Tarsis explained how revolutionary ideas develop among the Russian youth. Communist propaganda is forced on the youth daily in schools. It becomes tiresome and the young people tend to rebel. Also, Communist promises have never materialized, causing Russia's youth to become skeptical of communism, the guest lecturer said.

Mr. Tarsis was a war cor- respondent during World War II. He saw that illiteracy in the war cost the lives of millions of Russian people. Returning from the war, he saw what was left of the villages and how the people suffered. He revealed that many of his relatives had died in concentration camps.

Although his father was a Leninist, he died in a concentration camp. Mr. Tarsis experienced "the revolt of an honest man who tried to see" the logic of communism and began condemning it.

There is a general discontent among the Russian people to- day, the author said. The new generation of youth is different from its parents. More and more people are expressing their views openly.

"They are fearless and de- manding. They don't want to live the life of their fathers," commented Mr. Tarsis.

Approximately 15 to 20 per cent of the youth are active communists; 15 to 20 per cent are poets, artists, and writers actively rebelling against communism. The remaining 60 per cent are ordinary young people who just want to live life and do not care about politics. Nevertheless, at some time in their lives, they too clash with the communists.

These young people have their fads, as the young people do here. Jazz is very popular. They also like abstract painting, long hair, the shake, twist, and other new dances. When these fads are stopped by mili- tary police, the young people become angered.

Because of the growing dis- content of Russian youth, Mr. Tarsis makes this prediction:

"I don't know how long or how bloody it will be, but a revolution is inevitable."

Dr. Rosenberg Explains 'The Birth of a Drug'

Dr. Dale Rosenberg, assistant professor of chemistry at NWMSC, talked at the Junior Affiliates of the American Chemical Society meeting last Thursday on "The Birth of a Drug."

One of the highlights of his talk was his explanation of just what a drug company is and how it can serve humanity.

Dr. Roseburg, formerly of Hannibal, received his BS degree from Culver - Stockton College, Canton, and his PhD degree from the University of Missouri. Before coming to Northwest Missouri State College in 1966, he was affiliated with Merck and Co. in New Jersey and Virginia.

Land of Fantasy To Be Depicted In 'Snow Queen'

A children's theater production of "The Snow Queen," Hans Christian Anderson, will be presented at 1:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. Dec. 8 in the Administration Building auditorium.

The play will be an interesting delight for children and theater-goers of all ages, according to Rod Wilson, director. The fantasy will be highlighted by special effects and nearly direct audience participation. Special lighting, whirling winds, and small explosions will add excitement to the production. Another feature will be the suggestion of two polar bears, two ravens, and a reindeer.

Children's theater is real theater performed and produced by adults for children. Mr. Wilson explained that it is given as much concentration and preparation as theater for adults because children are just as perceptive as adults, and may, in fact, be more aware of a false presentation.

The director, who has taken specific courses in children's theater, has appeared in six such productions in summer theater in Okoboji, Iowa. He directed five plays for children before coming to NWMSC. He commented, "One of the most stimulating and exciting experiences is children's theater because of the children's enthusiasm and delight if the play is well done. There is no more appreciative audience than children."

Mr. Wilson emphasized that all age groups are invited to attend either performance. Several hundred children from Northwest Missouri are expected to attend the afternoon performance.

Faculty Briefs

Jerry Winsor, director of forensics, is the author of the article "Toward Honest Definitions and Limitations" that appeared in the October issue of the Forensic, official magazine of Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary forensics fraternity.

John Fuhrman, assistant director of Field Services, and Terry Myers, assistant to the dean of administration, talked with St. Joseph Junior College students last Thursday about requirements for admittance to NWMSC.

Dr. Kenneth Minter, Dr. Sam Carpenter, Dr. David Cargo, and Department chairman Ted Weichinger, representatives of the Missouri Academy of Science, recently participated in a secondary school teachers' science workshop at Lafayette High School, St. Joseph.

These science department faculty members gave a panel discussion concerning the problems of teaching biology, chemistry, geology, and physics. A question and answer session followed the discussion.

Miss Mary Jackson, assistant professor of Spanish, spoke to the St. Joseph foreign language instructors, and Mrs. T. H. Eckert, English instructor of the St. Joseph high schools at their annual workshop day.

Dr. John L. Harr will attend a meeting of the governor's advisory board on historic buildings and sites Sunday to discuss propositions for park development in Missouri.

Northern State personnel Dr. Charles Thate, dean of administration, Mrs. Ruth Nystrom, registrar, Terry L. Meyers, assistant dean of administration, and Mrs. Martha Cooper attended the recent meeting of the Missouri Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers in Springfield.

At the recent State Teachers meeting, Dr. Leon F. Miller, dean of instructions, attended two special meetings.

He attended a dinner meeting of the deans of instruction of Missouri Colleges and was present at a reception for alumni of Southwest Missouri State College, Springfield.

Richard Holman of the Physics Department attended a meeting of the American Association of Physics Teachers at Washington University in St. Louis recently.

Mrs. Handke Brought To St. Francis Hospital

Mrs. A. F. Handke, English instructor at NWMSC, will be transferred from Kansas Medical Center to the St. Francis Hospital, Maryville, today, following several major operations.

Mr. Handke, business instructor, reports that his wife will have a long period of convalescence at the hospital here. She cannot have visitors at present.

Delta Sigs Get New Mascot

The Delta Sigma Phi fraternity at Northwest Missouri State acquired a new mascot this semester in the form of Colonel, a Great Dane.

Colonel actually belongs to new biology instructor David Smith, an alumnus of Delta Sigma Phi. While he was attending school at Kansas State University in Manhattan, he let the Delta Sig chapter at Kansas State use Colonel as their mascot. When Mr. Smith came here, he lent him to NWMSC Delta Sig chapter. Colonel is a purebred Great Dane, although he is black rather than the usual fawn color of such dogs. Since he has been at NWMSC, Colonel has taken an active part in campus life. He has attended several football games and participated in the Homecoming parade.

The Stroller viewed an astonished group of young men in the Homecoming parade. They learned the hard way that foreign cars were not made to sit on.

Could it be that the student who called the library cataloging system the "Dewey Dismal System" was being subjective?

Serving as campus weatherman, the Stroller noticed it has been trying to snow. Time is running out for you girls who haven't made it to the bridge.

The Stroller is indebted to Mrs. Jack Gray, assistant to Miss Karen Licklider, dean of women, for the following quotation on happiness printed in a Phi Delta Pi magazine:

"Just for today, I will be happy. This assumes that what Abraham Lincoln said is true, that 'Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be.' Happiness is from within — it is not a matter of externals."

One of the most attractive papers in the Missourian exchange file arrived this week from Northeast Missouri State Teachers College, Kirksville. The Index has changed from news print paper to glossy white stock.

Contents of the paper are as interesting as the paper is attractive.

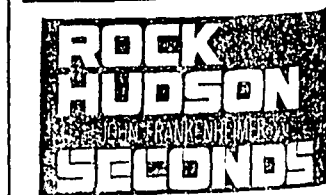

Considering the controversy on campus dress, was it really necessary for the speech major to attend her first class tired in her pajamas?

"THE SWINGER"

For More Convenient Residence Halls

"What are your suggestions for making life in the residence hall more enjoyable or more convenient?" was a question addressed to a number of the residents of the halls this week.

"The residence halls are our homes away from home, therefore, they should offer a few of the comforts of home. Franken Hall does have a warm atmosphere with carpeting, a fireplace, and other extras. However, I feel that a couple of items could be added for the girls' convenience. An ice machine would be welcomed by all the girls of Franken. Also, music in the lobby would be enjoyed by both residents and guests."

—Marsha Melson, sophomore

In Hudson Hall, Connie Deihl suggests, vending machines should be installed on every floor. Judy Peters thinks that study hours should be enforced there, especially after 10 o'clock.

Suggestions coming from Roberta Hall include Paula Weston's proposal for senior books, and Norma Wilson's idea of having a set of encyclopedias and general reference books in each residence hall.

Rick Hutchins, a Douglas Hall resident, would like to have sound proof rooms.

"I feel that the major inconveniences in Perrin Hall are inadequate phones and limited parking facilities. I find it annoying to have to 'fight' to use a phone. Two phones for 183 girls is absurd. The convenience of students and parents is impaired.

"Almost anyone who has looked for a parking space around 10:15 p. m. or 12:45 a. m. realizes the parking problem. There is great need for more sufficient parking" (in the Perrin Hall area).

—Roxanna Holleman, sophomore

I feel one inconvenience the men in Phillips Hall have to put up with is that of getting a clean sheet and pillow case in Wilson Hall. This might not sound like too much of an inconvenience to some, but I think it's going to get a little ridiculous this winter walking to the old residence halls for sheets.

I don't feel it would be too much added expense for the laundry delivery man to make two stops, one at Wilson Hall and one at Phillips Hall.

—Fred Kester, Phillips Hall

'This is OUR TOWN ...'

By Marjorie Hitchcock

Two-thousand theatre-goers showed their interest in the ordinary daily living of residents of a small town by attending and acclaiming the drama department's production of "Our Town," written by Thornton Wilder and directed by Dr. Ralph Elsom.

The audience responded eagerly to Stage Manager David Westak's description of "Our Town." Grover's Corners, N. H. is a personal atmosphere created so naturally, casually by Westak, in his last performance of his NWMSC career, made the guests in the auditorium feel at home. Dr. Gibbs, Tom O'Conner; Mrs. Gibbs, Marcia Hensleigh; Mr. and Mrs. Webb, Richard Heinz and the Nielson; the children — Emily Webb, Margaret Price, and George Gibbs, Tom Laville — and the people of the town, especially the Congregational Church choir, supported the Stage Manager's explanations.

So great was the empathy that numerous guests even recalled their school days, love affairs, and family losses in their own "our town" at the turn of the century or in more recent years.

The pantomime and acting of novice performers Henry Lemire as Joe Crowell, Ken Duff as Howie Newsome, Marilee Crockett as Rebecca Gibbs, and John Hoffman as Professor Willard added spice and gave the feeling of being at home.

The Professor did a remarkable job of explaining home town life when he reported the anthropological data, and Mr. Webb sincerely revealed the town's culture, "We like the sun comin' up over the mountains in the morning ... the birds ... Robinson Crusoe ... and Whistler's Mother."

Emily's revealing report of school, "Its something you have to go through," and the philosophy of the choir director Joe Maltsberger, "Music came into the world to give pleasure," (although he had had too much pleasure) helped to effect the home town atmosphere.

Laville and Miss Price rightfully captured the crowd's attention in Acts II and III. Their talent was well displayed in the roles they played as children, young lovers, and adults. Their effective representation of the realization of love, attitudes before the wedding, and evaluation of life and death made the viewers see and feel life as it is.

Emily's creative reflection of life, "It goes so fast ... we don't know what's going on," and George's dramatic grasping for that life which used to be in the final scene left an impact on the audience which will not soon be forgotten.

Japanese Art Shown In DeLuce Building

An exhibit of Japanese art can now be seen in the halls of the DeLuce Fine Arts Building. Ceramics and transparent and opaque watercolors are included in the show. The opaque watercolors have been mixed with gauche to produce a rather shiny surface, which is usually considered foreign to the medium of watercolor.

Shuhoo Koiwai, Shiojiri City; Yoshitoshi Furvichi Matsumoto City; and Giichi Shinoda, Hongmura, Higashichikuma-gun, all in the Nagano Prefecture, are featured in the display. These three men also had a showing of their work in January, 1966, in the Art and Music Department of the Kansas City Public Library. The show was sponsored by the affiliation committee of the Nagano sister-states.

'Collegiate Compendium' Reports Views from College Newspapers

Are you involved or just curious? The Collegiate Compendium, a newspaper that tells newsworthy things that college students are doing recently received notice in the Missourian office.

Its 24 pages contain the important views of the week from campuses across the nation. Over 100 schools contribute articles on what students think about drugs, peace, civil rights, God, and sex. There are nearly five million college students in the United States and the editors of The Collegiate Compendium believe that these masses are making some exciting news.

The University of Michigan, for instance, is offering seniors the chance to take courses outside their field of concentration on a pass-fail option. The courses will count for graduation but not for honor points. Instructors will not know which students have elected this option until after grades are issued.

At the Oregon State University a discussion of the infectious mononucleosis — a common back-to-school disease — appeared in the school paper. It explained the new "Mono-Test," a diagnostic blood-test for the so called "kissing disease." The results of the test can be determined in two minutes, eliminating the usual long-term diagnosing process.

From the University of California came remarks on "Games Professors Play." It expressed the opinion, based on an interview with a faculty member, that advancement, office assignments, and class assignments are often used as rewards and punishments for how well the individual teachers fit into the departmental political system. Innocent instructors who refused to play the game got hurt, and the students' welfare is left a far second in importance by many.

LDS, Communism, movies, the draft, sports, humor, music, and politics are just a few of the other subjects on which articles are printed in The Collegiate Compendium.

Student Forum

Dear Editor:

Since when does one-eighth equal three eighths? This is what the Student Senate is trying to tell the student body in its proposed revision of the constitution. The proposed revision states that 9 of its 24 members will be people who are a member of a sorority or a fraternity. Since the Greeks make up one-eighth (approximately) of the campus population, I do not see how they can still have a representation of three-eighths of the total Senate membership and say this is equal representation.

The constitution is long overdue for revision, and I applaud the Senate for its attempt at revision. I am glad that some attempt is being made, for more representation, but if it is going to be equal, why not make it that way? I urge the Senate to stop and reconsider the proposed revision before presenting it to the student body for approval.

—Name Withheld by Request

EDITOR'S NOTE: The writer of the above letter discusses only one of the plans currently under discussion by the Senate for revision of the constitution. Other plans providing for more equal representation are also being considered for the proposed change. It is also the understanding of the Missourian staff that before any such sweeping changes are made in the Senate constitution a vote by the student body will be called for.

Bearcat Basketball Squad Prepares for California Trip

Basketball is again in the news as the Bearcats prepare for their season opener Dec. 1 at Southern California College.

The Bearcats will also meet San Diego State College in what may prove to be two of the toughest battles of the season. Both schools have a much larger enrollment than NWMSC, and the leading small college soccer, Paul Crissman, is currently enrolled at Southern California. The 6' 4" forward averaged 36.3 points a game last season and has a season high of 80 points.

The trip will not be all work for the Bearcats who will be treated to a tour of Disneyland, Dodger Stadium, and other points of interest.

The 'Cats will return for their first home game against Pittsburg Dec. 6. Lamkin Gymnasium may look good to the returning squad, but Pittsburg, last season's Kansas State Champions and participants in NAIA tournament action, will not give their hosts a welcome homecoming.

Practice started Oct. 15, and the roundballers recently started full scale scrimmage. Head mentor Buckridge, whose team was 10-13 last season, believes that he has many talented players.

"I am encouraged with practice. I realize we have a young team, but we have more height and a better defensive game than we've had in past years," Coach Buckridge stated.

Returning lettermen are Ron Howitt, Mike Simon, Roger Nelson, Bob Tonnes, and Jim Vollmoth. Al Van Dyke, Phil Underwood, Vick Mitchell and Bruce Blakely are returning squadmen from last season's team. Ken Sheridan is also returning to the Bearcat ranks after a three-year hitch in the Armed Services.

In addition to several transfer students, the squad includes a group of promising freshmen. Ralph Gifford, Mike Polard, Gary Howren, Gary Goodson, Don Sears, and Ron Peterson are all prospects for spots on the team.

The Bearcat schedule for the 1966-67 season is:

"I have always used the fast-break offense and a pressure-type defense. To me, this is the only kind of basketball."

This statement by Coach Joe Cipriano, head basketball coach at the University of Nebraska, emphasizes his basketball theory, which he explained to approximately 50 area high school coaches in attendance Monday at the second annual basketball clinic.

Sponsored by the Division of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, the clinic also featured Dick Buckridge, MSC taskmaster, along with Bob Ogden, who is the head basketball coach at Southwest Harrison High School, Bethany.

Last season, Cipriano's ball club finished with a 20-5 record and placed second in the Big 8. Nebraska scored victories over such national powers as Michigan and Kansas.

During the first session of the morning, Cipriano explained his offense. He stated that the high-post offense he uses could be easily utilized by high school teams.
